Dear Parents,

I start my address as a school principal for ultimately we are all parents and at the core of our betterment strife lays the essence of all our struggles… the welfare of our children…

There will always be the strives and the passions, and all the ambitions that are in the foundation of our humanity, but the last 30 years have put things in perspective for us at AMSI. Our clarity on academic and business issues have become complete… at the center of our stage the hero shall always be the student…

For every "what if" question we have asked and answered, and for every question that we will be asking and pondering, we shall remain teachers and therein lies the strength of our commitment…

Dear parents…it sounds pretentious or maybe even unprofessional…if only all of us thought of each other as parents and brought their knowledge, wisdom and achievements to every negotiating table in that perspective…

At AMSI we commit to work with every strategic partner from that perspective…the benefit to the students secure the success of our endeavors…
