

March 2014 Issue

I was recently asked to speak at a conference to celebrate International Women's Day. While the topic revolved around Career Capital and the upcoming challenges in the work place, I found myself always going back to my reality and the realities of the people around me. No matter where I am, what I am doing and whom I am addressing, my students, our AMSI students, somehow find a way into the conversation, they become the focus and no matter what the topic is, they manage to become the heroes of my stories, and the reason to which I owe my career capital, my reality and my professional happiness, never mind growth and development...

Read More

AMSI Alumni

School holds a very special place in our memories. I remember my graduation as vivid as though it were

Read More

Woman's Day

Accenture is one of the world's leading organizations providing management consulting, technology and

Read More

AMSI Sponsors Art Exhibition

Marwan Karout, an art teacher at Rashed Al-Sa and a renowned artist, has won a number of art awards...

Emirates Literature festival

This festival is the Middle East's Best Maest celebration of the written and spoken word...

Emirates Festival of literature - Winners

Here's a video of the Emirates Festival of literature - English Poetry winners..

Read More

Emirates Festival of literature - Winners

Here's a video of the Emirates Festival of literature..

Read More

Registration dates for all AMSI Schools are now announced.
Please visit the schools' portals for more information.